The Armed Services and Veterans' Affairs Committee is a standing committee of the NAACP tasked with advocating for the fair and equitable treatment of minority members in the U.S. military and veteran populations. The committee serves as a bridge between the minority community and the government agencies responsible for military and veteran affairs.

Chair: Jadda Richardson – jadrich99@gmail.com

The committee's primary responsibilities, as outlined in NAACP bylaws, include:

- Ensuring Equitable Treatment: Establishing working relationships with local, state, and national agencies to ensure programs are administered fairly to minority service members and veterans.
- Information Hub: Serving as a central repository for resources and forms to assist veterans and their dependents with benefits, healthcare, and employment issues.
- Investigating Discrimination: Receiving and acting upon complaints regarding racial discrimination or the denial of benefits due to race, color, or creed.
- Studying Conditions: Analyzing the challenges faced by active military, reservists, National Guard members, and their survivors in the community.
